The Madison Journa', of Friday last, contains the decision of Messes. Hown, Lynna and Lov-ELL, the Commissioners appointed in this importfor us to publish in full a document of its length, -five and a half columns, and we give an ab-

Mr. Proudfit, it seems, claimed "a balance due him for materials furnished and labor expended under the contract, amounting to $14,970; for expenses incurred in preparation for the execution of the contract $25,000; for damages sus tained by a total breach of the contract by the State, $100,000.

of which he complains. To the admissibility of that contract in evidence, the counsel for the public law of the State—you must have known state urged several objections, which were fully argued and considered, and overruled.

The Commissioners held that the real and out. The Commissioners hold that the real and only the claimant at all—and, if so, to what amount the departure of the Asylum Commissioners injustice:

It was evident to us as it must be to all who have read that act, that the Commissioners were not bound to reproduce in construction the precise plan referred to in, the 4th Section of the Act—all conceded that they might, make some siterations in that plan—we very readily concede that they were not authorized to make any which should "materially change" it. But the question was, who were made the judges of what was referred to the determination of the Commissioners themselves—we then did not know what the plant was which the Commissioners had adopted—we did not know how far the one differed from the other. We are now made acquainted with both. We now know, what we then vehemently suspected, that the Commis-sioners had departed very widely from the plin sioners had departed very most of the Workester Asylum.

But we are compelled to confess that our better knowledge of the facts does not give us any better knowledge of the law. The strong argument against our interpretation of the act is simment against the Asylum Commissioners to declare the Asylum Commissioners to declare the Asylum Commissioners to declare the Asylum Commissioners.

tions we have placed upon things, and in our judgment, controlling. We will not take the time to state but this

It reems to us incredible that the Legislature so expensive, differing at all from the plan re-ferred to, if he was told or had understood that his right to compensation would depend upon whether the courts should say the alterations agreed upon by the Commissioners, were mate-rial or not?

rial or not?

We repeat therefore, what we said in a former opinion:—It the plan adopted by the Commissioners differs from that, referred to in the 4th Section of the Act much of little in our estimation, we are still bound to presume that in the judgment of the Commissioners the change was not mercial?

But that presumption has proof, and accordingly it was contended on the final hearing by at least one of the Attorneys for the State—not that the Commissioners made alterations in the plan to which they were referred which were material, but that they made alterations which they themselves defined, and know austain that position are also as the conclusion, that the not impossible to avoid the conclusion, that the Commissioners wholly disregarded the plan which the Legislature had in view and to which they were referred—and instead of exercising the discretion contided to them; of determining what alterations of that plan were necessary and would not materially change it, that they laid saide that plan altogether and adopted one utterly unknown to the Legislature, widely different from and vastiy more expensive than that to which the Legislature had referred them. If so, this was not the exercise of the discretion confided to them. If so, they did not give judgment at all upon the question how far they might after the plan without materially changing it and they gave judgment that they would not it but they gave judgment that they would pursue that plan at all, norany alteration or impursue that plan at all, norany alteration or impursue in the position, for we do not propose to base our award

That point disposed of-nnd lawyers may see the justice of the views there expressed, better forethem fulls to show any collusion between the contractor and the Asylum Commissioners; but it shows that the contractor, finding that there was but one other bidder, (LaMar), obtained from him, for $1000, the disclosure of the terms of his (LuMur'r) bid.

The evidence showed that the Contractor would have made about $129,600 profit on the job. His Counsel argued that such profits were not disproportimed to the magnitude of the enterprise, and no unreasonable reward for the isolation of capital necessary to complete the no power to put an end to the contract, that therefore, Mr. Proudfishas never been discharged from it, that consequently he has been compelled to hold himself and his capital for two years in countant readiness to go on with the work, and

If the State has not, in last, profice the con-tract, we do not see why she bught to pay dam-ages for the breach of it. More than that, if the State has not broken the contract, it seems to us the Claimant has. If he has not been dis-chiract from it, he cought to have some an under the Claimant has the ought to have gone on under charged from it, he ought to have been com

On the question of the amount of capital neccasarily invested by the contractor in the job, the Commissioners, by a calculation, estimate at only about $6000, and that for 60 days only and they think that no court of equity would

They hold that, however it might be that the acts of the Commissioners in varying the plan nd cost of the building were valid, still the conractor acted at his peril, for he saw them abanon the plan mentioned in the Report and Law, or something entirely different.

They take notice of the fact that although the Commissioners advertised that the plans might be seen on and after the 20th of September, yet they were not to be seen then, and the 20th of October was then given as the day, but at that time Mr. Resley, who wished to bid, was told that they had not arrived, while the 1st of November was the day for opening the proposals.-On the whole, say the Commissioners;

We believe, from the testimony, that the com-missioners were not prepared to farnish the re-quisite information to bidders until about the 28th of October, and, we believe, at that time there was no satisfactory information before the public, that bids would be received.

or betober, and, we are subject to demand of up and the character and we are will place you in as good a position pacuniarly as the character and the charac uilding-you knew that we so advised themyou had every reason to suppose that we would not consent to the erection of such a building as was contracted for moreover, we directed our aur and must have known when the plans and specifications were ready for exhibition—you knew also that you had but one competitor, for Dr. Bugb so informed you—you were thus enabled to obtain a contract which we had never thought to let, upon terms which it thought to let, upon terms which it would be onerous for us to comply with, and at a price enor mously disproportional to the cost. This last paragraph contains the gist of the matter of the Commissioners' opinion, and it is put into the following general propositions in self and to the party with whom he deals.

The Commissioners discuss at length the transaction of Proudfit with Lamar, and think that it furnishes additional reason why the state should not be held to the terms of such a contract. The Opinion concludes as follows :

Because, therefore, in making the contract be-ore us, the people of the State were obliged to onfide in the fidelity and discretion of agents because such agents in agreeing to this contract disregarded the wish of the people as expressed by their legislature and as known to both themselves and the contractor—because the building contracted for was vasily larger and more expensive than the one designed by the legislature sive than the one designed by the legislature— because the opportunity given to the public to prepare bids was not such as the law contemplabecause the opportunity given to the public to prepare bids was not such as the liw contemplated, nor as sound discretion would dictate—betause on the contrary, but two persons from the cause on the contrary, but two persons from the whole State appeared to bid for the contract, and whole State appeared to bid for the contract, and whole State appeared to bid were sailed in contract, and though those bids were sailed in contract. More about Peat. MESSES Editors:—I was interested in reading u the Sentinel a few days since, Mr. A. J. Langworthy's chapter on the peat beds in Dane Co. Dane is not the only County in the State where peat is to be found. Neither is Wisconsin the only State. It abounds in several of the Western States, and perhaps in all of the prairie and opening regions of the western valley. I have seen it in Michigan, Illinois and Missoui. It may be found on the prairies, in many of the slews (so called) and in the openings it is in marabes and sago, or low grounds. In passing from Madison to Prairie du Chien, by way of Blue Mounds, some two years since, and returning through Miveral Point, and Whitewater,

I saw indications of it in many places, and remarked to a fellow traveller, that the country was well supplied with fuel, notwithstanding its ack of timber, and on crossing the neck of a mursh, where ditches had been dug and thrown into the road, I discovered the whole trac!. was of peat, and on each side along the borders of the ditch where it had not been cut up by wagons, t lay in chunks fit for burning. I put some of t into the wagon, and at night at the Inn, dried t a little under the stove and it burned readily. I called the attention of the landlord to it, telling him he could get a cheaper and better article than oak wood with which to warm his house.— I think this was between Mineral Point and Whitewater, though I saw it in several places, and doubt not but it is deposited abundantly all over this western region, particularly in the prairie and opening country where it is most needed, and it will be an invaluable article to the owners and cultivators of those fartile and beautiful prairies and burn oak openings, where the scarcity of timber renders the knowledge and means of readily obtaining some other kind of fuel a great

The business of the place comprised two stores, 1 hotel, 1 saw mill, and 1 blacksmith's shop. On the 1st of June, 1855, according to the census, the population was 142. Now the village numbers 77 families, and a population of 350 persons—this is not guessed at, but an actual count, made by one of the old settlers. The village now contains:

boarding houses, 1 livery stable, 1 barber, 8 phychurch, 2 clergymen, 1 court house and 2 teachers, 1 church, 2 clergymen, 1 court house and offices for the several county officers.

We have never "gassed up" our village, as many publishers in new places make it their especial business to do, but are content to let facts and floures such as the shore, speak for them-

Roor River Railroad.—Mr. Fish, Engineer of the St. Louis & Cincinnati Railroad, has just completed a reconnoisance of the Root River valley; also, to a considerable extent, the passage back of Winona for the Fransitroute. He gives it as his unqualified opinion that no grade to, or up the Root River valley will exceed twenty feet to the mile; and that the entire valley is most favorable for the work proposed. Mr. F. states also, that no line of road back of Winona can be had short of eighty feet to the mile, and that the Root river valley is immeasurably superior in all the essential elements necessary to the support, business, construction, and success of the road.

The last number of the Canton (Trigg county, Ky.) Dispatch, publishes the following extracts from a letter to a citizen of that place. The editor of the Dispatch says that the writer is known in that community as a gentleman of verscity, in whose statements all confidence may be placed:

PEMBROKE, Dec. 18, 1856. BROTHER HENET:-I write this morning with the hope of sending the letter to Hopkinsville by hand. Last Wednesday week, about 12 o'clock, the news came that the negroes at the furnaces at Stewart county, had rebelled, and that they had crossed the Cumberland river and would athad crossed the Cumberland river and would attack Lafayette that night, and with this came other rumors from Dover. I fixed up immediately and went to Lafayette that night, getting there about haf an hour in the night. The report I found to be false, but the town was in a state of perfect excitement upon the negro question. The citizens had called together their most substantial men, and formed a committee and were engaged in the examination of the negroes. I was permitted to witness the investigates. gioes. I was permitted to witness the investigation, which was rather general and indefinite. out others had told starting facts in regard to the insurrection. Mr. Rust, owing to the ex-citement, had adjourned his school that merning. Thesday morning—went to Dover and arrived there about two o'clock. The people had hung four negroes at 11 o'clock that morning, and two more then in town to be hung. I got to the place of execution in time to see the last one go off. Of the six that were hung, three had been preachers. They were all proved to be ring eaders. I learned that the men at the forge leaders. Hearned that the men at the followers at work whipping the truth out of their negroes, so I rode out there that night, and was up with them all night. I never had such feelings in my life. I saw a list of negroes that had been whipped, and was told all what they had stated, and then I heard the balance exemined—some of them taking five and six hundred takes the force them would still the take—but when ushes before they would tell the fale—but when they did tell it, it was the same that all the others had told. Some told the wholestory without lick. Those that were examined were not pe per lo, which would be $63 a head or the bullocks, a trial of $11.785,691, paid the country in one year for beef cattle.

If we estimate the calves to average 150 in, ive woish, it will make $462,150 lps, and this at $6 average $100, will make $328,107,50 paid for yeal calves.

The sheep we retinate at $6 painds not average, which will give $20,831,825 pounts of mixton. At an average of $43.00 a head for sincep, they come to $1,620,051.

We think is safe to estimate the not weighted swine at $125 pounds of pork each, which will give a total of $6,726,875 pounds, which, at $6 a pound, or $10 per hog, is $3,458,160.

As the cows will pass into beef in process of time, these must be added to the general stock of butchers meat, and estimating them to average $600 pounds, net, we have $6,455,500 pounds of beef. At an average of $30 a head the cows accume to $449,825.

The sum total of this is that the city has paid the country for animals slaughtered in the city, in the year $186, the sum of $1,630,505, and since estimated products $67,830,503 is 73 pounds per $47, $40,505,500 pounds of meat. This, at an average of 10 cents a pound to the consumer, makes $20,785,015, and gives $20,830,503, and child in and about the city.

If it me that a considerable portion of this is safed a sun abroad, but not enough to balance the vast quantity of meats, same, poultry, &c., that comes in dead, so that we cannot reduce the average daily consumption below the above figures. It this does not prove as a meat-cating people, and certainly a well fed one; and it also prove in a house of meat; and it has a will known fact this the poorest class are the largest consumers.

The Eric Canali We learn from sources which we consider entirely authentic, that in the opinion of those State effect where duties render them the most conversant with the condition of the cansis, the spring navigation will open with a very important addition to the present of the canal for inrough freight is no greater capacity of the canal for inrough freight is no greater than the narrowest and shallowest part, and that so leng as there is a single mife which admits of the passage of as there is a single mife which admits of the passage of as there is a single mife which admits of the passage of as there is a single mife which admits of the passage of the canal exceeded that capacity. We are assured by those whose means of information are undoubted, that with proper energy on the part of the Commission with proper energy on the part of the Commission ers in charge, the canal will open in the spring with first et depth of water from end to end. This will admit of feet depth of water from end to end. This will admit to the passage of boats of not less than two hundred tons burthen—a fact which ought to be known to salintericated in the narigation of the canal, that the boats built the present winter may be adapted to this enlarged capacity.
